

Farmington Public Schools hosts information discussions for grandparents

Farmington, Michigan—Farmington Public Schools is offering something new for area grandparents. All grandparents are invited to attend informational discussions with other grandparents to discuss and learn more about:

- Challenges that face grandparents raising their grandchildren
- The struggles and successes of grandparenting.
- Learn, receive and provide support.
- Discover tips for coping with changing family dynamics.
- Gather information about available community resources.
- Understand effective ways to collaborate with schools and outside service systems.

These free discussions will take place the second Tuesday of each month from 6:30 - 7:30 p.m. (January 10, February 14, March 13, April 10, May 8 and June 12) at the Ten Mile Building, 32789 West Ten Mile, Farmington. Grandparents can attend one or all of the sessions. RSVPs are preferred but not required.
