Do you know a teacher who respects the uniqueness of each child? One who ignites the joy of learning? Then you need to nominate that teacher for the Sixth Annual Judy White-Ora “Teaching with Heart and Soul” Award.

This program is in honor of Farmington Public Schools’ former Assistant Superintendent of Curriculum, Judy White-Ora, who dedicated her life to the pursuit of excellence in education. Her “Teaching with Heart and Soul” pledge was created to inspire teachers to reach out to kids in unique and creative ways. It is in this spirit that we dedicate this award to her memory.

Listed below are the suggested criteria from Judy’s “Teaching with Heart and Soul” Pledge to be considered when recommending the nominee:

- Respects the uniqueness of each child
- Ignites the joy of learning
- Listens to the child’s voice
- Puts human connections first
- Encourages the spirit of each child and lets their light shine
- Creates a caring learning environment

The attached form, when completed, should be submitted by Friday, March 23 to School/Community Relations at Central Office, 32500 Shiawasee, Farmington.

All nominees will be processed through a Selection Committee. This Selection Committee, composed of District teachers and administrators, will select the District’s winner. The winner will be honored at the May 8, 2012 Board of Education meeting.

Please note that the information submitted on the following pages is the only criteria used for selection.

If you need further information about this award, please call School/Community Relations at 248. 489. 3349.
